Dear Sir:

I am writing to tell you I am returning some of the merchandise you sent me. I am very sorry to be doing this, but the sizes of the shoes did not fit in most cases. I tried to get the white players on The Bears to take some, but they kicked on the price. The sizes were also not right for them.

The players complained the gloves were not large enough also.

Please send me an adjusted bill so I can pay it and not hold you up any longer. I do hope I have not caused you any inconvenience or loss. If so let me know about it. I appreciate the credit you have always offered me, and I do not like returning things like this. From now on I will have the men come to you to pick the things they want.

Very Truly Yours
